Can electric cars make transport more sustainable in Costa Rica?

President Carlos Alvarado Quesada sees electric cars as key to making transport more sustainable in Costa Rica. The National Decarbonisation Plan has big goals for electric vehicles. It wants 70% of buses to be electric by 2035 and 100% by 2050. For light vehicles, the goal is 60% zero-emission by 2050, with 25% electric by 2035.

Is Costa Rica a good place to buy an electric car?

Costa Rica's EV success isn't just about low prices, though. The country has relatively high gas prices, around $5 per gallon, which makes the switch to electric vehicles an even more attractive option.

Are electric cars the future of Costa Rica?

This makes it easy to cut down on pollution by using electric cars. Electric vehicles are becoming a key part of Costa Rica's future. Electric cars are a smart choice for many in Costa Rica. They cost less to run and maintain than gas cars. Plus, charging them is cheaper.

How many EV chargers are there in Costa Rica?

By March 2024, Costa Rica had 57 fast chargers for electric cars. This is up from 50 in 2022. They plan to add more, aiming for 80 to 90 stations soon. Most of these stations are public L2 chargers. They are free and can charge most EVs in 4 to 5 hours. Also, EV sales have doubled in recent years.

How much does an EV cost in Costa Rica?

As of now, there are 11 electric vehicle models priced under $25,000 in Costa Rica--compared to just six in neighboring Colombia. The Geometry E, in particular, ignited a price war that pushed Costa Rica's EV market to new heights. This model is now $2,000 cheaper than when it was first introduced, a significant factor in the market's growth.

Should you go electric in Costa Rica?

The country has relatively high gas prices, around $5 per gallon, which makes the switch to electric vehicles an even more attractive option. Add to that Costa Rica's lack of domestic oil reserves and its plentiful renewable energy sources, and you've got a perfect recipe for an electric revolution.
